A little bit about us

Facilities at the Club have gradually been improved over the years. In the late 1960's a new clubhouse of modest proportions (an old prefabricated doctors' surgery) was erected. This has been extensively remodelled and extended over the years and now houses the members' lounge and function room. Two new tennis courts were added during the 1970's followed in 1978 by the opening of two new squash courts together with new cricket and tennis changing rooms. This project created a new squash section at the Club, which is still thriving.

1995, Blackburn Northern added hockey to the range of sports offered. This was following lengthy discussions with Blackburn Hockey Club. A hockey section was formed with ambitious plans to build a synthetic grass pitch close to main clubhouse.

In 2004/5, the Club embarked on a major redevelopment costing in excess of £600,000.00. This was made possible following a successful sports lottery bid together with funds raised by the efforts of members plus a legacy from former trustee, the late Frank Lassey and a loan from Thwaites Brewery. The building was gutted, extended and given a complete refit. A new indoor tennis facility was erected housing two courts. The 'tennis dome', as it is known, was built on land kindly donated by the local authority. At the same time two of the existing outdoor courts were re-surfaced with artificial grass.

In 2007, after years of planning, the hockey section finally succeeded in obtaining a grant which enabled the Club build a new all weather hockey pitch on the adjoining Pleckgate School playing fields.

In 2013 the Club celebrated its centenary. Various events were held, the highlight being a Centenary Celebration Dinner at Eaves Hall.

A century of hard work has resulted in a superb sports complex which is much admired and very much to the credit of Joseph Bassnett, Arthur Shaw and a willing stream of volunteers, far too numerous to mention.
